OU's 1st Science Workshop draws 200 prepsters

Too young for unions, high school students ignored the 40-hr. week and held a workshop at OU, Saturday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Sponsored by the Department of Chemistry and Department of General Sciences, the Workshop was the first of its kind at OU. A total of 200 students from Omaha and the surrounding area participated.

President Bail extended the official welcoming gesture in a short opening speech. Addressing "Science's future greats," President Bail assured his youthful audience that there would always be room for progress and new discoveries in the field.

Several rooms housed the display of technical papers and exhibits entered in the day's competition.

First place in the exhibits went to the "Automatic Pilot" submitted by Don Bohlson of Benson High School. "Ballistical Testing Stand" constructed by James Mason of Benson High was awarded second prize. Mary Hartman of Central High School broke the Benson monopoly with honorable mention for her shell collection.

Student papers awards went to Edwin C. Gatz of Benson High School, first place; David McGarvey of Benson, second; and Joe Armstrong of Central High School, honorable mention.

Judges were, Dr. Herbert P. Jacobi, University of Nebraska College of Medicine, Joseph Carver, Creighton University and Herbert Little, Abraham Lincoln High School, Council Bluffs.

5 candidates vie in 7th annual contest

Joe College VII will be elected tomorrow.

The election will be held in the cloak room from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. Only women students may vote. Five candidates have been nominated from the student body. They include: Sid Narenberg, Beta Tau Kappa; Bill Fear, Theta Phi Delta; Clark Fobes, Independents; Harry Elsasser, Phi Sig; and Irwin Shultz, Alpha Sig.

Oxford's Canon Hood is speaker tomorrow

Canon Frederick Hood of Oxford University, England, will be the guest at the Coffee Hour tomorrow afternoon in the faculty clubroom from 3 to 4:30.

He will answer the students' questions about life at Oxford. He, himself, took undergraduate work at that university, later became a teacher there and is now an administrator.

A graduate divinity school, Pusey House, is under his direction. It was founded at Oxford in 1888 as a memorial to Dr. Edward Pusey, English clergyman. Canon is also a friend of C. S. Lewis, fellow and tutor of Magdalen College, Oxford, whose Screwtape Letters excited the religious mind six years ago.

Student panel members will be Glenn Desmond, John Madden, Jim Badger and Bill Farquhar.

Fieldhouse and Stadium bids to be awarded by Regents today

Bids on completion of the Fieldhouse will go before the Board of Regents today at its 5 o'clock meeting in room 100.

Twenty-four bids have been offered. Three contracts will be awarded: (1) general building of the Fieldhouse and Stadium, (2) heating and ventilation and (3) electrical work.

Lowest total of all three divisions of the work amounted to $468,629. This figure, however, does not include the portable basketball floor, rollaway bleachers, fence and other incidentals.

There is not enough money on hand to take care of everything needed by fall for the Fieldhouse. The regents are expected to figure out a way to tackle the problem tonight.

The bids ranged from $381,947 to $573,597 for construction of the Fieldhouse and attached Stadium. Only the construction of the main part of the Stadium will be constructed this year. Construction of the wings to the Stadium have been postponed.

Heating and ventilation bids ranged from $59,840 to $74,680, and electrical work from $27,342 to $34,548.

"My own opinion is that the Fieldhouse will not be ready for use until Christmas," said Charles Hoff, finance secretary. "The football field and Stadium, though, will be ready to go by the start of the season, I am sure."

"Construction of the Stadium will begin immediately," "I believe all football games played on the campus this coming season will be in the afternoon."

'Discrimination' brings protest

Beta Tau Kappa, local Jewish fraternity, has written a letter to President Bail, protesting the organization of a local chapter of Delta Sigma Pi, international professional commerce and business administration fraternity, on the OU campus.

The organization also registered a similar protest last year against having a chapter of Delta Sigma Pi here, because of the restrictive, "Christian Caucasian" clause.

The executive board of the fraternity has said in its letter to President Bail, "Our policy has not changed since last year. We do not oppose national fraternities in the least, but we still oppose racial and religious intolerance wherever we may find it. And we particularly oppose a policy by Omaha University of giving legal sanc-

White and fine supporting cast do excellent job with 'George Apley'

By Jean Durney
George Apley may have lived among mountains of trivial happenings, but he was a human being as portrayed by Doug White last Friday and Saturday.

An appreciative audience saw White interpret the title of "The Late George Apley" as a sympathetic character who honestly tries to do his best by his children and his inherited social duties.

It is not his fault that the environment to which he was born is to strong for him to realize sound human values without regard to what "people will think."

Slack gets laughs

Tom Slack got many a laugh as Roger Newcombe, cynical and alcoholic brother-in-law of George. Roger, cast in the same mold as George, has enough perception to see the futility of their narrow little world; but he cannot break away from it, so he takes refuge in liquor.

Dolores Hughes gave the capable performance OU audiences have come to expect of her as George's eccentric, domineering sister, Amelia.

Tom Meyer was a standout as Horatio Willing. Foolish, empty-headed Horatio tags at George's heels with the unbounded admiration and unreasoning devotion of a puppy.

Lois Brady shone as Agnes Willing, daughter of Horatio and Jane (Jean Banse). Shy, appealing and dowdy, Agnes has always been in love with George's son John (Dean Swanson) and he is in love with someone else.

tion, recognition, and approval to such discrimination by approving it in the constitutions of fraternities, particularly professional and honorary."

Besides John, the Apley family consists of his wife, Catherine, (Janice Gragson) and daughter, Eleanor (Phyllis Earp).

Eleanor studies Freud

John is a blueprint of George thirty years younger. Catherine is more sympathetic to the children's struggle to live their own lives than is her husband. Eleanor, a spirited girl, has been absorbing ideas from Freud. Of a stronger character than her brother, she manages to escape the Apley mold while John succumbs.

She elopes with Howard Boulder (Harry Langdon), a young Harvard lecturer who pokes fun at the Apley gods, Emerson and Thoreau. His wit at the expense of the Concord sages is not appreciated by the Apleys.

Completing the Willing family is Horatio's wife, Jane (Jean Banse). She is a timid little woman like Agnes. Both are completely dominated by Horatio.

Harold Marer portrays Julian Dole, father of John's fiancee, a self-made man who hails from Kansas City.

In small parts, Ann Weinhart, Mary Ann Linn, Bill Farmer, Alice Severyn and Berkly Forsythe added their excellent bits to the picture.

Dunaway is victim of April Fool joke

Members of The Gateway editorial staff gathered for their regular staff meeting Friday. They were feeling elated over the success of the April 1 edition of the "Yawetag."

In walked Robert Mossholder, head of the Journalism Department, and Editor Emmett Dunaway commented that the staff had just been discussing assignments for the next issue.

Mossholder looked grim, paced the floor, and then announced, "I don't think you'll have to worry about the next issue."

"Huh?" asked Dunaway.

"Mr. Dunaway," said Mossholder icily, "do you know what the faculty thinks of your April Fool's edition?"

Replied Mossholder, "April Fool."

Mossholder replied, "but then there are others. I've just received an ultimatum and I'm afraid I'll have to ask the staff to pass a resolution to drop you from the editorship."

The staff passed the resolution.

"I have a right to know who's doing this to me!" said the martyred editor.

Replied Mossholder, "April Fool."

SPORTS

Freddie Abboud versatile athlete competes in six different sports

A former class president is the subject of The Gateway's sports cartoon today.

Freddie "Bud" Abboud gains the honor after winning four major athletic letters in two years—two in football, two in baseball.

The 22-year-old junior has also played with OU in the Amateur Ice Hockey League and with the Papoose basketball team.

Last year he was an intramural boxing champ. To prove his versatility, he ran one race during the '48 track season.

In case you're wondering where that class prexy part fits in, look back to the fall of '47. Abboud was chief executive of the freshman class that semester.

Freddie started playing ball for the Indians two years ago. As shortstop for Yelkin's first Omaha U nine, he compiled a batting average of "about .390."

Last year, playing the same position, he hit .200.

Football Freddie's forte

Handling the pigskin gave the ex-Central star his biggest sports headlines. Running from fullback, the hard-driving Abboud led the Indian squad in Omaha's first postwar football season.

That was in 1947. Injuries kept Freddie on the bench most of last season. A charleyhorse, a chipped bone in his left foot and a torn ligament in his left leg allowed him to see action in only four games.

Bud topped the hockey league in one department.

He led in penalty time—27 minutes.

Played service ball

During the war, Bud was a sergeant with the 8th division in Italy. He played service football and baseball, including action in a Mediterranean Theatre of Operations all-star baseball tournament.

Out of the wartime football experience came a chance at the big time in college football. Abboud was offered an athletic scholarship to Oklahoma University.

After visiting the Norman campus in the summer of 1947, Freddie turned down the offer. "Why, I

Pitchers throw 'stuff at hitters' in batting session

Batting practice was on Friday's schedule for the OU baseballers.

Baseball Coach Virgil Yelkin took his ballplayers to their "adopted" softball diamonds at Elmwood Park for a welcome outdoor workout.

The ballplayers concentrated on hitting, as Yelkin used all of the pitchers alternately. "We're really going to push them from now on out," he said.

Because the diamonds are softball size, the infielders didn't get much of a workout. However they finish the practice by running around the park along with their teammates.

The baseballers got in a Saturday workout even though skies looked like more rain.

Still lacking diamond

The weather isn't Coach Yelkin's only worry, though. The lack of a suitable ball diamond on which to practice also has the baseball men worried.

However Yelkin expressed the hope that he could move his men onto OU's field soon and let them become accustomed to a real ball diamond.

But here, again, he'll run into delays. Because the Fieldhouse chops off the right field of the old ball diamond and a bulldozer will have to level more space further west on the hill.

First of Campbell's golf clinics tomorrow

Johnny Campbell, OU golf coach, will conduct a clinic for the university's golfers tomorrow at 4.

This clinic will be the first in a series that are designed to help the advanced golfer as well as the "dub". They will be held at Campbell's Driving Range, 74th and Dodge.

don't know," he commented.

Majoring in physical education, Abboud is already getting in practice. During the summer he coaches a midget league baseball team. Two years ago his Butter-nut squad finished second in the league.

Bud is now looking ahead to the baseball season. With the optimism common to every player he's convinced that this is the year he is "really going to hit."

OU wrestlers sweep meet, prove addition of mat sport good gamble

Five OU grapplers proved without a doubt last week that the addition of the mat sport to OU's athletic program was not a mistake.

Coach Allie Morrison's protégés did so by sweeping five of the ten Midwest AAU crowns in a meet held at the Jewish Community Center last Thursday and Friday evenings.

In doing so the Indian squad hung up an enviable record. They entered eight boys in the meet, placed six in the finals and annexed five championships.

The five champions, Dick Holst, Fred Pisasale, William Fuks, Charley Mancuso and Howard Byram, also earned the right to compete in the National AAU meet at Coe College in Cedar Rapids, Ia., this Friday.

Pisasale cops thriller

Fred Pisasale, Indian 147-pounder, and Bob Russell of Nebraska gave the fans the best match of the tourney. Smart wrestling gave the veteran Pisasale a 3-0 decision.

Charlie Mancuso played the roll of Jack-the-Giant-Killer in his match with Don Burson. Weighing in at 156, the Omaha Captain managed a handy 3-2 decision for the 191-lb. championship. The burly Burson tipped the scales at an even 191.

Indian Dick Holst had the most work to do in gaining 135-lb. laurels. The hard working Holst had to beat two men before reaching the finals. He pinned Herschel Nuznum of Council Bluffs for the crown.

Little Dick Nigro proved the only

Indian disappointment in the final matches. He dropped a close 2-1 heart-breaker to an ex-Central High mate, Jim Farris.

Summaries of OU matches:

First Round

123 — Beauford Hairlip, Council Bluffs, decided Jack Skelly, OU frosh, 3-2.

135 — Dick Holst, OU, decided Dan Vermillion, Nebraska, 3-2.

147 — Fred Pisasale, OU, pinned Dave Miller, North Side Y., in 1:15.

158 — Don Rau, Nebraska, decided Bob Kriss, OU, 6-5.

Second Round

135 — Dick Holst, OU, decided Bob Smith, Council Bluffs, 5-4.

136 — Jim Farris, Omaha Central, decided Rich Nigro, OU, 2-1.

136 — Dick Holst, OU, pinned Herschel Nuznum, Council Bluffs, in 3:50.

147 — Fred Pisasale, OU, decided Bob Russell, Nebraska, 3-0.

165 — Bill Fuks, OU, pinned Randy Streeton, York College, in 7:25.

191 — Charlie Mancuso, OU, decided Don Burson, Omaha, 3-2.

Heavyweight — Howard Byram, OU, pinned Ben Kaiman, Omaha, in 10:30.

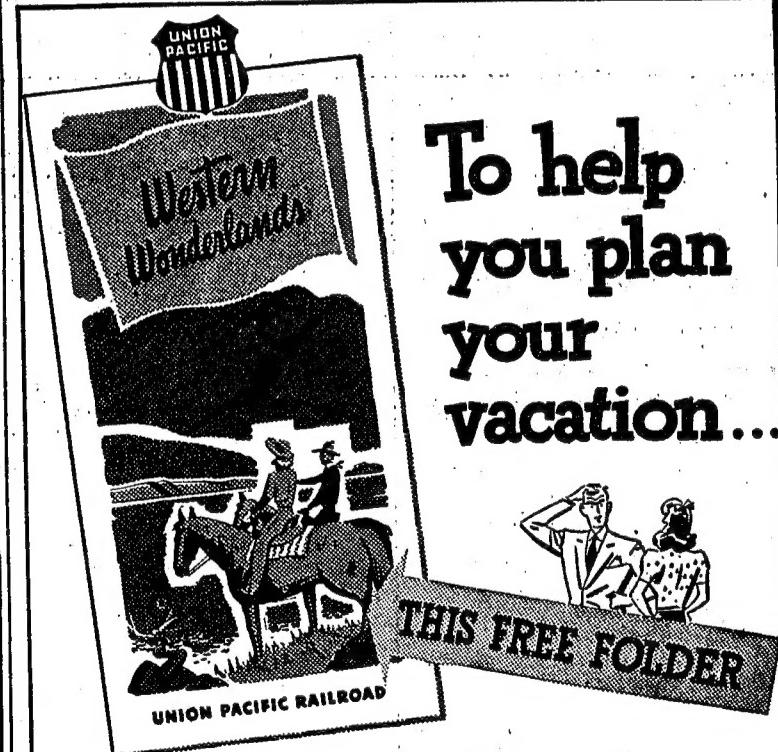

Thinclads restless as season opener nears

A restless OU track squad will probably begin regular practice sessions this week.

Hurdles were to have been placed on the track yesterday—"weather permitting." Use of the pole vault and jump pits will have to wait another week, however. New sawdust is needed.

With the first meet coming up in less than three weeks, the boys are anxious to get out and show their stuff. Several were pounding the cinders in warm-up work last week.
